With sore limbs, Macbeth and his loyal friend Banquo crossed the misty ^{moon} moor. The heavy rain stung ^{their} ~~your~~ eyes like acid and thunder roared like a ravenous beast. The corpse-filled battleground shocked you and screams of men tore the night in too. ^{our fierce warriors} After ~~a~~ labouriously limping up the hill, three ^{sounds} mysterious witches appeared from a cave as dark ^{like the} as the ^{devil's} ~~devil's~~ mouth. Then the monsters began to ^{witches} speak to them... ^{limped up hill.}

"All hail the ^{as} valiant Macbeth," they groaned, thunder struck with every word, "who will soon be Thane of Cawdor." Another ominous figure stepped forward from the spectral fog.

"All hail Macbeth who will be King very soon."

One said before they vanished into thin air.

112 An excellent start

Feeling like they were losing it, the two valiant soldiers turned ^{to} each other puzzled.

"Why should we trust those monsters?"

Barquo exclaimed ~~try~~ trying to calm Macbeth, "I would not worry about it." However a rider came from upon the ^{heath} with news that Macbeth will be named Thain of Cawdor due to his constant loyalty ^{by}. After processing this news, he wrote a letter to his wife and sprinted home feeling accomplished. During this time ^{Lady Macbeth} she thought of a devilish plan.

"Just imagine the power and respect we'll get if the prophecy ^{comes} true," she said mockingly as she taunted him. "And there is only one way to kill Duncan!"

"I won't kill him under my own roof!" He said roared, questioning what had got into her mind.

Soon after the din of the argument had diminished Macbeth finally agreed. Later that night, he drugged the guards ~~so~~ st snuck into the room and plunged a skin-piercing knife ~~down~~ through his ~~caring heart~~ Macbeth went to bed getting madder every minute.

Early in the morning, a ^{mourning} ~~fuming~~ Macduff roared that the King been found dead.

"What kind of ~~cold-hearted~~ tyrant would even dream of this?" Lady Macbeth ~~ext~~ sobbed, ~~g~~ ^g ~~king~~ ^g ~~dis~~ ^{dis} ~~pain~~ ^{pain}

The Kings ^(Malcom and Donalbain) After blaming Duncan's sons, they ran away, leaving the Macbeths to take the Ruby encrusted crown.

Then soon after, he ordered Barquo to be killed. & The darkness had ^{taken} completely ~~took~~ ^{over} him, getting worse every second.

112 for effort and creativity 5 apostrophes!

Act 4	- Macbeth visits the witches, who give him 3 prophecies - Macduff's family are executed - Lady Macbeth dies
Act 5	- Macbeth and Macduff's armies meet in battle - Macbeth is killed and Malcolm becomes king

That night a ^{deranged} ~~horrified~~ Macbeth was haunted by a spectral figure. Banquo. After killing his once best friend, he became an evil tyrant. Petrified, he raced to the ^{dastardly} witches seeking help. However, they told him three puzzling things. One that no man ~~born~~ or woman could kill him, because the ^{vengeful} Macduff and he'll be King until Birnam ~~wood~~ Wood came to Dunsinain. Macbeth was exhilarated, he was invincible. After coming home he soon found out that Macduff had ^{joined} ~~joined~~ Malcolm. Outraged, a ^{gunning} ~~facing~~ Macbeth

Savagely killed Macduff's ^{entire} family with ^{no} ~~a~~ ^{mercy} ~~house~~ scream. The lunacy had ^{taken} ~~look~~ over. On the other hand, Lady Macbeth was tortured by visions of blood-stained hands. Sadly, she died.

11 In the next week Mac ~~be~~ ^{duff} had formed an army and were charging to Dunsinain. On a blood-stained battle-field one of ^{Macbeth's} his servants came with news of his wife's demise. Macbeth let out a hoarse scream.

12 ^{Knowing} ~~Knowing~~ he had nothing to lose, he charged forward slithering anyone in his path. In the middle of the battle-field he met a ^{evil} ~~evil~~ Solom Macduff.

14 So it was you!" he shouted. his hands shook. 15 With rage, "you who killed our King, your cousin!" "Go away now unless you want to spend the rest of eternity with your family," Macbeth roared, about to walk off. "no man or woman ^{wound} ~~can~~ ^{can} kill me - it'll only lead you to your demise." Just then, Macduff exclaimed that he was cut from his Mum's womb. All of a sudden, He he charged like a bull and his sword raced to Mcbeth.

Before he could turn around - so in the blink of an eye - there was a big lull and a thud.
Mcbeth was dead. ^{crimson blood set on the floor} Later that day, Malcom rightfully became King.
