

Should Britain Leave The EU

By Natasha and Amelia

Since Britain decided to join the EU, in 1973, there has been some debate on whether we should stay or leave. There is an equal argument but it is a tough choice. This is especially important this year due to the vote on June 23rd.

Reasons why people think we should stay

Firstly, some people believe we should stay because they think we won't be able to trade as easily. Furthermore they also think that travelling would be very different, if people wanted to move to another country and stay there permanently it would be hard.

Reasons why people think we should leave

First of all, some people believe that leaving the EU won't have a big impact on our lives because nothing would really change. Also, they believe that the EU are too controlling and are putting too much pressure on us, believing that they are the ones making us give money away. In addition, the EU are trying to have one big flag and one prime minister. Whilst David Cameron believes we should stay, many others disagree. Moreover, people believe that immigrants are taking over in the way that they are having cars and houses.

Conclusion

In conclusion, after equally weighing up both sides of the argument, we can understand pros and cons and can not predict what may happen in the near future. However, we're not the ones to decide what will take place. Come what may, you will have a say.
